

BIOGRAPHY

Michelle Wu

Presidential Management
Fellow

Since September 2008, Michelle Wu has served as Alliance Advisor with the Global Development Alliance at the U.S. Agency for International Development in Washington, DC.

In this position, she provides support to health-related alliances, serving as liaison to USAID's Global Health Bureau and the President's Emergency Plan for AIDS Relief. Michelle also works more broadly to support the Global Development Alliance's efforts to engage strategic partners.

Michelle has served in several positions with USAID, most recently as short-term Public Health Advisor for the USAID mission in Hanoi, Vietnam in 2007. During 2004-2006, she worked in the Office of HIV/AIDS in Washington, DC, where she was responsible for field coordination as well as public and legislative affairs.

Prior to joining USAID, Michelle worked as Senior Research Manager at the Corporate Executive Board, providing management consulting services to senior executives at Fortune 500 companies.

Michelle was raised in Hong Kong. She received her bachelor's degree in history from Yale University, and a master's degree in international development from the Georgetown School of Foreign Service.

Michelle resides with her husband, James, in Washington, DC.
